Before smartphones came along, my life had been very different. I'd had more time to do the things I had interest in. Besides having to go to work, I'd spent my free time hanging out with friends. We would watch movies at the theater, enjoy meals at restaurants, and go to clubs to dance. Often, our weekends would be filled with trips to the beach and other towns and cities. When I wasn't with my friends, I'd passed the time working on my hobbies, reading books, going to the gym, and watching TV. I sure had had a full life.

Sadly, the smartphone has taken over my life. I hate to admit it, but I'm never without my smartphone, and I would totally be lost without it. I use it for almost everything, such as contacting my friends. However, instead of meeting them in person, now I just message them or catch up with them on social media. Also, I watch movies and read things online, and playing video games has become my new and only hobby.

A recent study has shown that volunteering improves our health and makes us live longer. This may be related to the fact that happiness is very important to health. What's more, being volunteers lets you make more human contacts. For example, those who you help may help you in your career in the future. Besides, you can get more new skills and ways to deal with harder situations. Next, volunteering gives you valuable experience and makes you more confident. Last but not least, the experience of being volunteers looks excellent on your resume when you are looking for job opportunities. It's clear that while others get help from your efforts, you also get something meaningful from them. Volunteering is a win-win situation. So, after reading the advantages of volunteering, do you want to join us? Here are some works about volunteering. Welcome to join us.
