For most people, learning English is not an easy job. However, it can be child's play! Why? Have you ever watched how children learn their mother tongue. If you have that experience, you will realize it. As soon as children are born, they listen to a lot of words in their native language and pick them up naturally. Moreover, to let babies to follow, adults around usually use simple words when talking to them.

After a year or two, children begin to utter the single words, and then they say phrases or even sentences. Most important of all, not only their pronunciation but their grammar doesn't matter. Because as time goes by, they will improve. Besides, if they make mistakes, others won't laugh at them. They enjoy asking questions or talking like a chatterbox even with limited vocabularies.

As they get older, their vocabulary will grow large enough for daily conversation, and then they won't have difficulty with real conversation. That's how children pick up a language.
