Lena Maria Klingvall is a gospel singer in Sweden. She was born without arms. Luckily, she has great parents. They love her very much and treat her as a normal child. They do their best to teach her and help her. For example, Lena's father started teaching her to swim when she was three. She even joined in several swimming contests.

Although Lena has no arms, she is still happy and bright. She never gives up when she meets problems. She works hard and tries to do many things with her feet. She can draw with her feet. She can make dresses with her feet. And she can drive with her feet. Now she even has her own car.

As it can be seen, global warming is getting more and more serious. The earth has got hurt terribly because of many human activities. Many people waste the natural resources badly without limit. Scientists have been trying very hard to think of ways to help people save more resources to protect our land. In 2011, Horace Luke, who is from Taiwan, and Matt Taylor from England, made a difference. They invented the first and the only smart scooter, Gogoro in the world. It needs no oil but only electricity, consuming less energy and reducing air pollution. The look and the design of Gogoro are cute and they make it popular in the world. Although it's not very cheap, many people buy it for its great idea. If you need a scooter now, it can be one of your choices. Let's make a change and be more eco-friendly.
