六、閱讀測驗 (每題 2 分)

(第一篇)

Which animals are color blind? Like humans, some animals have trouble telling one color from the other. For example, dogs are color blind because they can't see some colors, and the colors they can't see very clearly are red, orange, and green. When they see these colors, they think they are seeing yellow and blue. Therefore, they can see yellow, blue and gray.

Most birds have good vision except owls. Owls have big eyes, but they are color blind. Turtles aren't color blind, but they have better vision than owls because they can see things that are nearby. As for sea animals, whales and seals are color blind because there is something missing in their eyes. Among the sea animals, sharks are the luckiest ones. They can see things clearly with their eyes.

Are bees color blind? The answer is NO. They can see colors that we can't see. The colors they can see very clearly are yellow, blue, and white. That's why we often see them flying around flowers with those colors.

People think bulls get angry when they see something red, but in fact, they attack anything that is moving because they are color blind. The reason why bulls run towards a red flag is that they think it as a dangerous thing.
