If you travel to some countries, the special food may surprise you. The special food culture has become popular these years, so more and more countries are trying to make insects a dish. For some countries, eating insects has been in their food culture for a long time. If you don't eat insects, you may have to do soon.

Scientists said that eating insects may be the best way to save population. There will be more billion people in the world by 2050. We won't have enough food for everyone if we keep producing food the way that we do now. Insects are easy to be raised and rich in proteins. Besides, they are eco-friendly. Insects need less food and water than cows, but they have more protein. Also, they give out less gas than cows do. They may be important food in the future.

For most people, it may be hard to take a bite of the bugs on their plate. So, cooks are trying hard to make insects into burgers and meatball. It will look more delicious. Do you want to try it? You might love it!

There are more and more YouTubers putting videos online. No matter what their videos are about, there is one thing in common: they all want to make it big. To most people's surprise, the biggest money maker in 2018 was a 7-year-old boy, Ryan. He made 22 million dollars. He started his channel in 2015. What he does in his video is very simple. He opened a new toy and explained how he played with the toy when he was playing with it. He played with all kinds of toys in his videos. He said that people liked him because he could always make others laugh. Most of the money he made as a YouTuber comes from pre-roll ads. Pre-rolls are the short videos you see before the videos you want to watch. The ads may tell people something new to spend money on. The more popular your channel is, the more money you'll get from pre-roll ads. Ryan's channel has 23.3 million followers. The number is still growing. The following are three comments:

- Mark: It's crazy that his parents allow him to be a YouTuber. The price of being famous will shock them.
- Helen: Well, it's hard to say no to that much money though it's not an ideal job.
- Linda: Children get to practice expressing themselves. What's the problem with that?

Have you ever heard the interesting sentences like "Every dog has its day", "They live a cat-and-dog life"? Do you know what they mean in English? In fact, there are a lot of expressions about dogs, and there are often some interesting stories behind them. Take "It rains cats and dogs" for example. It doesn't mean cats and dogs fall down from the sky. People believe its story can go back to England of the 17th century. During those times, there were always many dead cats and dogs around in the water after heavy rain. That's why "It rains cats and dogs" means "it rains hard." There is another story about this expression. In old times, people believed that the bad spirits of cats and dogs could bring lots of rain. Whether you believe it or not, the expressions really make languages more interesting.
