Pets and Humans

Pets are humans' best friends. They don't speak, but they can show how _____26_____ they love you. Dogs wag their tails to show their happiness. Cats sleep near you to show their trust.

Pets don't lie. If they _____27_____ you, they want to be around you. If you _____28_____ about them, they can feel your good will. They are also great listeners. Whenever you are sad or tired, they are always there for you.

However, some people hurt them just _____29_____ fun. It's very cruel. Humans are great because we respect other animals, not _____30_____ we are stronger than them. Treat them well, and you will find out how lovely they are.

humans (n.)人類 wag (v.)搖擺 tail (n.)尾巴 trust(v.)信任 lie (v.)說謊 will (n.)意念

Social Media May Harm Teens' Mental Health

A new study shows social media use is linked to depression in teenagers, especially teenage girls.

The study found social media itself doesn't cause harm but it increases teenagers' exposure to cyber-bullying and disrupts activities that have a positive effect on mental health like sleep and exercise.

So, only reducing social media use to improve well-being or mental health may not help. Teenagers need to learn ways to cope with cyber-bullying and promote better sleep and exercise behaviors to reduce both physical and mental harm.

The researchers asked teens about their mental distress and personal well-being—things like life satisfaction, happiness, and anxiety. The researchers found that frequent social media use was linked to greater mental distress. The effect was especially clear for girls: the more frequently they checked social media, the more mental distress they had.
